The Disability Movement and the History of the ADA

- Justin Dart, Jr., who is widely thought of as the “father” of the ADA, was born in 1930 to a very wealthy, prominent family. Growing up, Justin was very misbehaved, attending seven high schools, but never graduating. He later described himself as a “super-loser,” admitting that he didn’t like himself. In 1948 Justin contracted polio and was given three days to live. It was at this point in his life that Justin changed directions. Justin felt loved and was given affection by those around him and liked the feeling. In turn, he began to treat people with respect and love. Although polio turned Justin into a wheelchair user, it did not kill him. He went on to receive his bachelors and master’s degrees, then began to work in business. In Japan, Justin was the president of Tupperware Japan, where he hired women and people with disabilities to empower them. Justin was interested in more than money — he wanted to create social change. Soon executives in the U.S. told Dart, according to Mouth Magazine, “to stop promoting women to executive positions [and to] stop his disability campaign.” Upon hearing these orders, Justin and his wife, Yoshiko, resigned.

  In the early 1980’s, Dart was a member and eventually the chair of the Texas Governor’s Committee for Persons with Disabilities. In 1981, President Reagan selected Dart to be the vice-chair of the National Council on Disability. At this time Justin and Yoshiko began a national tour, stopping in every state to gather stories from individuals with disabilities. Their goal was to collect accounts of injustices and hardships that disabled people faced in order to create a piece of legislation that would finally address discrimination against people with disabilities in America. The Darts did all of this at their own expense, twice.

  After meeting with disabled people across the nation, Justin and Yoshiko brought the stories they collected back to Washington, D.C. and began working towards legislation that is now known as the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). Upon receiving the information collected, Senator Tom Harkin from Iowa worked with many other prominent leaders to author the ADA. Harkin refers to the ADA as “an ‘emancipation proclamation’ for people with disabilities” and believes that disabled individuals “spend a lifetime overcoming not what God wrought, but what man has imposed by custom and law” (source: McCrone).

Senator Harkin worked very hard to pass the ADA and, on July 26, 1990, George H.W. Bush signed the Americans with Disabilities Act into law on the Whitehouse lawn. With Justin Dart on the stage beside him, the last words Bush spoke before signing the document into law were, “let the shameful wall of exclusion finally come tumbling down.”

After the ADA was signed into law, Justin explained why the ADA is so significant for disabled individuals across America:

The ADA is a landmark commandment of fundamental human morality. It is the world’s first declaration of equality for people with disabilities by any nation. It will proclaim to America and to the world that people with disabilities are fully human; that paternalistic, discriminatory, segregationist attitudes are no longer acceptable; and that henceforth people with disabilities must be accorded the same personal respect and the same social and economic opportunities as other people. (eeoc.gov)

Since the ADA was passed, individuals with disabilities have been able to improve their lives. The ADA is used daily to even the playing field for disabled people. Additionally, the ADA has been upheld and strengthened through lawsuits, such as the Olmstead case tried in the Supreme Court. With the ADA as support, individuals with disabilities can and will continue to take strides to improve their lives and their communities.

- Capitol Crawl
  - On Monday, March 12, 1990 disability rights activists descended on the U.S. Capitol demanding the passage of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) which would give equal rights to people with disabilities. The ADA was passed by the Senate the year before but as finding complications getting through the House of Representatives. Over 1,000 protesters came from 30 states to protest the Act’s delay.

  After the day’s rally and speeches, over 60 activists abandoned their wheelchairs and mobility devices and began crawling the 83 stone steps up to the U.S. Capitol Building. During which people were loudly chanting “What do we want?” “ADA!” “When do we want it?” “NOW!” Other activists remained at the bottom holding signs and giving encouragement to the crawlers. “I want my civil rights,” Paulette Patterson of Chicago stated as she was inching her way to the top. “I want to be treated like a human being.” Eight-year-old Jennifer Keelan was famously taped while crawling up the stairs. “I’ll take all night if I have to,” she firmly stated. The second-grader from Denver suffered from cerebral palsy and decided to partake in the crawl after joining ADAPT (Americans Disabled for Accessible Public Transit). She was inspired by her friend Kenny Perkins who passed away in January 1990. As Jennifer reached the top she stated, “I’m doing it for Kenny.” Michael Winters, a leader in the Independent Living Movement, later wrote about event and the reaction people had to the crawl. “Some people may have thought that it was undignified for people in wheelchairs to crawl in that manner, but I felt that it was necessary to show the country what kinds of things people with disabilities have to face on a day-to-day basis,” Winters recalled. “We had to be willing to fight for what we believed in.”

Ed Roberts, Judy Heumann, and ADAPT

Ed sues the state of California for claiming he was too “crippled” to go to college.

Judy sues New York Education System for not granting her a teacher’s license.

ADAPT protests against nationwide bus systems for not being accessible.
Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973

All buildings and programs receiving federal funding must provide accessibility to people with disabilities.
The Role of Justin Dart and Senator Tom Harkin

Justin Dart traveled the country collecting stories of discrimination and exclusion of people with disabilities.

Mr. Dart is commonly referred to as the “father” of the ADA.

Senator Harkin introduced the ADA to the House of Representatives in sign language as his brother was hearing impaired.
Capitol Crawl

March 12, 1990 one of the largest and most visual demonstrations for civil rights in U.S. history.

On Monday, March 12, 1990 disability rights activists descended on the U.S. Capitol demanding the passage of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) which would give equal rights to people with disabilities. The ADA was passed by the Senate the year before but as finding complications getting through the House of Representatives. Over 1,000 protesters came from 30 states to protest the Act’s delay.
The ADA is Signed into Law on July 26, 1990
The Early Years Following the Passage of the ADA

State and local government entities are now required to provide program access to include access to all goods and services provided by local municipalities as well as their facilities.

1991 ADAAG takes effect requiring all new buildings constructed or altered on or after January 26, 1993 to be fully accessible.

Voluntarily compliance is the rule not the exception.
The Late 90’s-2014

Lawsuits became prevalent as businesses and state and local government entities refused to comply with the law.

The 2010 ADA goes into effect March 15, 2012.
The Present State of the ADA

Lawsuits still continue.

More city governments and privately owned businesses began to use funding sources for proactive access.

Ashley v. City
Martin v. City
The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog.... He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer; he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world.... When all other friends desert, he remains.

—George G. Vest, “Vest’s Eulogy to the Dog”
SERVICE ANIMAL DEFINED

Service animal means any dog that is individually trained to do work or perform tasks for the benefit of an individual with a disability, including a physical, sensory, psychiatric, intellectual, or other mental disability. Other species of animals, whether wild or domestic, trained or untrained, are not service animals for the purposes of this definition. The work or tasks performed by a service animal must be directly related to the individual’s disability. Examples of work or tasks include, but are not limited to, assisting individuals who are blind or have low vision with navigation and other tasks, alerting individuals who are deaf or hard of hearing to the presence of people or sounds, providing non-violent protection or rescue work, pulling a wheelchair, assisting an individual during a seizure, alerting individuals to the presence of allergens, retrieving items such as medicine or the telephone, providing physical support and assistance with balance and stability to individuals with mobility disabilities, and helping persons with psychiatric and neurological disabilities by preventing or interrupting impulsive or destructive behaviors. The crime deterrent effects of an animal’s presence and the provision of emotional support, well-being, comfort, or companionship do not constitute work or tasks for the purposes of this definition.
Ask and Ye Shall Receive

• May ask only two specific questions:

  (1) is the dog a service animal required because of a disability?

  (2) what work or task has the dog been trained to perform?
Canady v. City
The Plaintiff has been unable to and continues to be unable to enjoy full, safe, and equal access to the benefits of the programs, services, and facilities owned, operated, and/or leased by HELENA.

In addition to not providing equal access to the programs and services offered and operated by HELENA, HELENA is in violation of 42 U.S.C. § 12101 et seq. and 28 C.F.R. § 36.302 et seq., and is discriminating against the Plaintiff due to the following violations, inter alia:

(i) King Biscuit Blues Festival Accessible Parking—the area designated for accessible parking at the corner of Walnut Street and Mission Street is comprised of broken concrete and side debris, is uneven, and has changes in level greater than 1/2 inch with many places having changes in level greater than 2 inches. There are no designated accessible parking spaces, ramps, or accessible signage;

(ii) King Biscuit Blues Festival Accessible Seating—the area routinely designated for wheelchair accessible viewing of concerts is too small to accommodate the number of wheelchair users who routinely attend, contains obstructed sight lines and does not allow for adequate dispersion of accessible viewing.

ENGAGING IN THE INTERACTIVE PROCESS OF TITLE I (HUMAN RESOURCES’ ROLE)

Tracey L. Cline-Pew, SPHR, SHRM-SCP
Director of Human Resources
Arkansas Municipal League
501-978-6111 / tpew@arml.org
A city’s Human Resources professional must know and understand all laws that apply to an accommodation situation.

HR is responsible for posting required disability anti-discrimination notices. The poster can be found at https://www1.eeoc.gov/employers/poster.cfm and is usually part of multi-faceted federal law posters.

HR must be aware that the ADA, the Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA) and workers’ compensation laws may intersect.

Example: An street department employee injures his back at work requiring back surgery. Workers’ Compensation covers the injury and lost time. Depending on your policy, the time off work for the serious injury can run concurrently with FMLA leave. When the employee returns to work, he requests an accommodation because he is unable to lift heavy objects or sit for long periods of time. The accommodation request falls under the ADA...
One of the most important roles that HR plays in the ADA process is developing comprehensive job descriptions that define the essential functions of a job. Job descriptions should be developed through a thorough job analysis.

An adequate job description lays the foundation of not only the knowledge, skills and abilities that are required to perform a job, but also the physical and mental attributes that are needed.

A detailed job description will lend guidance to the accommodations that can be made to accomplish the essential functions of a job.
HR should be involved in developing and maintaining ADA accommodation policies and procedures. Whenever possible, legal counsel should be included in this process.
HOW IS AN ADA ACCOMMODATION REQUEST MADE?

The employee can make the request.

An employee’s representative can make the request.

In some circumstances, the need for an accommodation may become obvious to an employer.

The request can be made in writing or verbally and does not have to specifically refer to the ADA.

Example 1: An employee tells her supervisor, “I’m having trouble getting to work at my scheduled starting time because of medical treatments I’m undergoing.” This is a request for a reasonable accommodation.

Example 2: An employee asks for a new chair because his is uncomfortable. While this is a request for a change at work, the statement is insufficient to put the employer on notice that a reasonable accommodation has been requested. The need for a chair is not linked to a medical condition.
The employer must determine whether the employee’s condition qualifies as a protected disability under the ADA. Under the ADA, you have a disability if you have a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits a major life activity.

The ADA emphasizes that the definition of “disability” should be construed in favor of broad coverage of individuals to the maximum extent permitted by the terms of the ADA.

Examples of medical conditions that would be considered a disability includes: deafness, blindness, diabetes, cancer, epilepsy, mobility impairments, intellectual disabilities, autism, bipolar disorder, PTSD, schizophrenia, etc.

The term impairment does NOT include the following: compulsive gambling, kleptomania, pyromania, transvestism, exhibitionism, pedophilia, gender identity disorders, psychoactive substance use disorders resulting from current illegal use of drugs, etc.
It is the employer’s responsibility to engage in an interactive process with the employee, and in some cases with health care professionals, to determine whether an employee can perform the essential functions of a job with or without a reasonable accommodation.

Be prepared for conflicts of interest when the employer prefers one accommodation and the employee prefers another. In this situation, communication is key.

When the disability or the need for an accommodation is not obvious, the employer may ask the employee to provide medical documentation about the disability and functional limitations – but the scope of the request should be limited and pertain only to the disability and need for an accommodation.

Failure by an employer to participate in an open dialog with an employee after receiving a request for reasonable accommodation could result in liability for failure to provide a reasonable accommodation. The burden is on the employer to comply with the law.
DETERMINING WHETHER AN ACCOMMODATION IS REASONABLE

- An employer must determine whether an accommodation is reasonable. Some solutions are simple and inexpensive – such as raising a desk to a height that will accommodate a wheelchair. However some may create an undue hardship.

- Undue hardship not only refers to a financial hardship, but also on how extensive or disruptive an accommodation might be.

- An employer must also consider the health and safety of other employees, customers or the public.

- Assessments should be made on a case-by-case basis.
The entire process outlined in this presentation should be continually monitored to ensure that the accommodation is effective. At times, adjustments may be needed.

HR should maintain accurate records of the entire process. The documentation should be kept in a confidential file as the records contain protected health information.
What are the requirements of a state or local government to be compliant with the ADA?
In a nutshell, state and local government entities must make all of their programs and facilities usable and accessible to people with disabilities so that they may participate in the same manner as people who are not disabled. Below I have outlined the specific requirements for ensuring program access as well as some examples of program access.
• Providing accessible parking spaces in a city park where all other parking spaces are grass
• Relocating the city council chambers from an inaccessible building to an accessible one
• Providing compliant accessible playground equipment
• Providing materials in alternative formats
• Providing interpreters for the deaf
• Providing accessible websites
• Making changes in policies and procedures that may otherwise prevent someone who is disabled from participating in a particular program
• Providing lifts or ramps into swimming pools
• Making dugouts and concession stands accessible
• Ensuring that when contracting with an outside entity to provide services or events that those services or events are accessible to the public
• Evaluate all curb ramps and city sidewalks and develop a plan to remove all barriers to access for people with mobility or visual impairments
Step 1 to ADA Compliance:

Appoint and Train an ADA Coordinator
Step 2 to ADA Compliance:

Develop a Grievance Procedure
Step 3 to ADA Compliance:

Perform a Self-Evaluation
Step 4 to ADA Compliance:

Survey All Facilities and Develop a Transition Plan
Step 5 to ADA Compliance:

Ongoing Staff Training
What can TCI do for your city/county?

- Telephone and e-mail consultations
- Seminar and webinar training on the requirements of the ADA
- Full property inspections which include the existing conditions, digital photography to document each barrier discovered and each item in compliance, recommendations for barrier removal, and the cost involved to remove each barrier to help develop a transition plan
- Working with each municipality to review all programs and services and develop a self-evaluation
- Plan review for new construction or alterations
- Disability awareness training seminars
- Settlement conferences
- Case Review
- Depositions/court appearances

   SAMPLE SELF-EVALUATION AND TRANSITION PLAN ....... 20
INTRODUCTION

Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) requires cities to provide access to all services, programs, and activities that they offer to people with disabilities. Cities are required to make reasonable modifications in their policies, practices, and procedures to accommodate individuals pursuant to Title II and avoid discrimination. However, cities are not required to make modifications that would result in a fundamental alteration to a program, service, or activity or that would result in a direct threat to the health or safety of others.

This compliance overview should serve as a model for your city to use to comply with the accessibility requirements of the ADA. In addition to your city performing a self-evaluation and transition plan, your city should also commit the financial resources to bring itself into compliance with the ADA and train its employees to be aware of accessibility issues.

Please note that under Title II, cities that employ 50 or more persons were to have developed a transition plan, discussed herein, by July 26, 1992. In addition, all cities were to have completed a self-evaluation, discussed herein, by Jan. 26, 1993. Structural changes needed for program accessibility, also discussed herein, were to have been made no later than Jan. 26, 1995.

If your city has not already complied with these requirements, it should do so immediately. Cities that have already completed a self-evaluation are not required to do another one, although periodic review is a best practice to maintain compliance with the ADA.

This booklet contains samples and forms in the Appendix that will assist in bringing your city into compliance with the accessibility requirements of the ADA. However, these forms are not intended to be a substitute for legal advice. Furthermore, this booklet does not address all matters covered by the ADA. As with all legal matters, municipal officials facing complicated legal issues should consult their city attorneys.

Neither these forms, nor any other single packet of forms, can simplify the legal intricacies of the ADA. A review of the ADA and the federal regulations governing the Act, along with timely and consistent legal advice from your city attorney, will provide the best opportunity to comply with the Act.
ADA COMPLIANCE

ADA compliance begins with the following steps:1

1. If your city has 50 or more employees, it must designate an employee as the city’s ADA Coordinator. This person or persons will serve as a contact person for the public and will coordinate all ADA responsibilities within the city. The ADA Coordinator should oversee the city’s compliance with ADA regulations and investigate complaints or grievances from the public. 28 CFR § 35.107(B).

Appendix A of this booklet is a sample form that may be used to document and publicize the designation of your city’s ADA Coordinator.

2. Establish a grievance procedure, such as the sample found in Appendix B, for resolving complaints of ADA violations. A grievance procedure must provide for the prompt, equitable resolution of complaints filed by people with disabilities or by someone on the behalf of someone with a disability. 28 CFR § 35.107(B).

3. The grievance procedure should include a complaint form, such as the sample found in Appendix C, which can be completed and submitted to the city’s designated ADA Coordinator. 28 CFR § 35.160(b)(2).

4. Publish the required public notice, and do so in alternate formats (e.g. large print, braille, or audio format) and make it accessible electronically (e.g. via email or in HTML format on your city’s website). The notice should identify your city’s ADA Coordinator and methods to contact them. The notice should also state that your city has a policy of not discriminating against individuals with disabilities and that it has adopted a grievance procedure that can be initiated by contacting the ADA Coordinator. 28 CFR § 35.106. A sample Public Notice may be found at Appendix D to this booklet.

5. Give notice to your community that the city intends to conduct a self-evaluation of its policies, procedures, and services. The notice may be placed in the local newspaper or, if no newspaper is available, on local bulletin boards at city hall, the post office, etc.

Your city is required to accept comments from the public on its self-evaluation and is strongly encouraged to consult with individuals with disabilities and organizations that represent them to assist in the self-evaluation process. 28 CFR § 35.105.

6. Conduct a self-evaluation of the city’s policies, procedures, and facilities.

A self-evaluation is a procedure in which the city evaluates its buildings, services, policies, and practices and tries to make sure that they are reasonably accessible to all individuals, in compliance with the requirements of the ADA. Results of the self-evaluation should be retained for three (3) years. 28 CFR § 35.105.

During the self-evaluation, your city should identify all of its programs, activities, and services, and review all the policies and practices that apply to the administration of the city’s programs, activities, and services.

Your city is not required to hold a public hearing concerning the self-evaluation, but it is required to accept comments from the public on the self-evaluation. In addition, you are strongly encouraged to consult with individuals with disabilities and organizations that represent them to assist in the self-evaluation process.

During the self-evaluation, your city should determine whether any of its policies and practices affect the full participation of individuals with disabilities in city programs, activities, and services.

Some issues to consider include:

a. Whether any physical barriers to access exist. If structural changes are necessary, include them in the transition plan. 28 CFR §35.150(d)(3)(i).

1 While this booklet addresses ADA requirements for municipalities in terms of a mayor-council form of government, the procedures and examples set forth within this booklet may be easily modified for a municipality that is a city manager-board of directors form of government.
b. Whether any practices or policies exclude or limit the participation of individuals with disabilities in municipal programs, activities, or services. If so, such policies or practices must be modified, unless they are necessary for the operation or provision of the program, service, or activity. Identify policy modifications to be implemented and state the justifications for any exclusionary or limiting policies or practices that will not be modified. 28 CFR §35.130(b)(7)(i).

c. Whether the city communicates with applicants, participants, and members of the public with disabilities in a manner that is as effective as its communications with others, making available appropriate auxiliary aids and services where necessary to ensure effective communication. 28 CFR §35.106.

d. Whether procedures have been established to evacuate individuals with disabilities during an emergency.

e. Whether municipally operated historic preservation programs give priority to methods that provide physical access to individuals with disabilities. 28 CFR §35.150(B)(3).

f. Whether decisions concerning a fundamental alteration of a program, activity, or service, or a decision that an undue financial and administrative burden will be imposed by Title II, are made properly and expeditiously. While a city does not have to take any action that would result in a fundamental alteration in the nature of its program or activity or an undue financial or administrative burden, such a determination can only be made by the head of the city or their designee and must be accompanied by a written statement of the reasons for reaching that conclusion. This determination must be based on all resources available for use in the program in question. Even if such a determination is made, the city must take any other action that would not result in such alterations or burdens but would nevertheless ensure that individuals with disabilities receive the benefits and services of the program or service. 28 CFR §35.150(a)(3).

g. Whether individuals with mobility impairments are provided access to public meetings. 28 CFR §35.150(a)(1).

h. Whether construction of each new municipal facility or part of a facility, or the alteration of existing facilities after Jan. 26, 1992, conforms to the standards designated under the Title II regulation. 28 CFR §35.151.

i. Whether measures have been taken to ensure that city employees are familiar with the policies and practices for the full participation of individuals with disabilities. 28 CFR §35.106.

If your city has identified policies and practices that deny or limit the participation of individuals with disabilities in its programs, activities, and services, it must take immediate action to eliminate the impediments to full and equivalent participation.

Guidelines that may be used for purposes of performing a self-evaluation are found in Appendix E of this booklet.

7. Develop and adopt a transition plan if changes are needed to achieve accessibility. Appropriate money to put the plan into effect and complete the tasks outlined in the plan. A transition plan should be utilized to resolve any issues identified in the self-evaluation.

At a minimum, your city’s transition plan should contain:

a. A list of the physical barriers in a public entity’s facilities that limit the accessibility of its programs, activities, or services to individuals with disabilities;
b. A detailed outline of the methods to be utilized to remove these barriers and make the facilities accessible;
c. The schedule for taking the necessary steps to achieve compliance with Title II (if the time period for achieving compliance is longer than one year, the plan should identify the interim steps that will be taken during each year of the transition period); and
d. The name of the official responsible for the plan’s implementation.

A copy of your city’s transition plan should be made available for public inspection.

A sample self-evaluation and transition plan is found at Appendix F of this booklet.

8. Your city must provide the public with information that explains Title II’s applicability to its services, programs, or activities and apprises individuals of Title II’s prohibitions against discrimination.

This information can be provided in several ways: handbooks, manuals, and pamphlets that are distributed or made available to the public; the display of informative posters in public places; or by television or radio broadcast. In providing this information, your city must comply with the Title II requirements for effective communication, including alternate formats, if appropriate.

9. A public entity has the burden of proving that compliance with program accessibility would result in a fundamental alteration in the nature of the program or in an undue financial and administrative burden.

• The decision that compliance would result in such alteration or burdens must be made by the head of a public entity or their designee after considering all resources available for use in the funding and operation of the service, program, or activity, and must be accompanied by a written statement of the reasons for reaching that conclusion.

• If compliance with program accessibility would result in a fundamental alteration in the nature of the program or in an undue financial and administrative burden, a public entity shall take any other action that would not result in such an alteration or such a burden but would nevertheless ensure that individuals with disabilities receive the benefits or services provided by the public entity.

NOTICE UNDER THE AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT

In accordance with the requirements of Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, the City of ______ will not discriminate against qualified individuals with disabilities on the basis of disability in the provision of the city’s services, programs, or activities.

Employment: The City of ______ is an equal opportunity employer and does not discriminate on the basis of disability in its hiring or employment practices. The City of ______ complies with all regulations promulgated by the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under Title I of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and the Americans with Disabilities Amendments Act (ADAAA).

Effective Communication: The City of______ will generally, upon request, provide appropriate aids and services leading to effective communication for qualified persons with disabilities so they can participate equally in the city’s programs, services, and activities, including qualified sign language interpreters, documents in braille, and other ways of making information and communications accessible to people who have speech, hearing, or vision impairments.

Modifications to Policies and Procedures: The city will make all reasonable modifications to policies and programs to ensure that people with disabilities have an equal opportunity to enjoy all city programs, services, and activities. For example, individuals with service animals are welcomed in city offices, even where pets are generally prohibited, as long as the animal does not create a legitimate safety risk or fundamentally alter the nature of the city’s services.

Anyone who requires an auxiliary aid or service for effective communication, or a modification of policies or procedures to participate in a city program, service, or activity, should contact the office of the ADA coordinator, ____________ (name), as soon as possible but no later than 48 hours before the scheduled event.

The ADA does not require the city to take any action that would fundamentally alter the nature of its programs or services or impose an undue financial or administrative burden.

Complaint/Grievance Procedure: Complaints that a city program, service, or activity is not accessible to persons with disabilities should be directed to ____________ (name), ADA coordinator, at ____________ (voice telephone number) or ____________ (TTY telephone number).

Forms on which to file your complaint will be provided or, if necessary, your complaint will be heard verbally. A record of your complaint and the action taken will be maintained in a special complaint file in the ADA coordinator’s office. A decision concerning any ADA grievance will be considered by the designated ADA coordinator within ___ days of being filed.

The city will not place a surcharge on a particular individual with a disability or any group of individuals with disabilities to cover the cost of providing auxiliary aids/services or reasonable modifications of policy, such as retrieving items from locations that are open to the public but are not accessible to persons who use wheelchairs.

- Accessible parking spaces must be the closest spaces to the building’s accessible entrance.
- Accessible parking spaces must be at least 96 inches wide with a clearly marked adjacent access aisle of 60 inches. (If possible, make the parking space van accessible, as one out of every six accessible parking spaces must be space van accessible. This requires a parking space at least 96 inches wide with an adjacent access aisle of 96 inches and 98 inches vertical clearance.)
- The access aisle must connect directly to the accessible route to the buildings.
- If the accessible route is in front of the parking space, install wheel stops to keep vehicles from reducing the width of the accessible route below 36 inches.
- Spaces and aisles must be level with no slope greater than 1:48.
- All accessible parking spaces must have an unobscured vertical sign that shows the universal symbol of accessibility.

BUILDINGS

Most Arkansas cities have at least one municipal building open to the public, such as city hall. However, your city may have more than one municipal building open to the public—police station, fire station, water works, transportation, waste water, cemetery, city park (with restrooms or concessions), municipal auditorium, or convention center. If your city has more than one public building, then you must fill out a checklist, such as the one presented on the following pages of this booklet, for each one.

ALTERATIONS TO EXISTING FACILITIES

- When the city chooses to alter any of its facilities, the elements and spaces being altered must comply with the 2010 ADA Standards for Accessible Design (“2010 Standards”).

- An “alteration” includes remodeling, renovating, rehabilitating, reconstructing, changing or rearranging structural parts or elements, changing or rearranging plan configuration of wall and full-height or other fixed partitions, or making other changes that affect (or could affect) the usability of the facility. Normal maintenance, reroofing, painting, wallpapering, or other changes that do not affect the usability of a facility are not considered alterations. 28 CFR § 35.151; 2004 ADAAG § 106.5.

- Where strict compliance with the 2010 Standards is “technically infeasible,” the city must comply to the maximum extent feasible. “Technically infeasible” is defined as something that has little likelihood of being accomplished because existing structural conditions would require removing or altering a load-bearing member that is an essential part of the structural frame, or because other existing physical or site constraints prohibit modifications or additions that comply fully with the 2010 Standards. Certain alteration exemption exists as well, such as those that would threaten or destroy the historic significance of historic property. 28 CFR § 35.151; 2004 ADAAG § 106.5.

COMMUNICATING WITH PEOPLE WHO HAVE DISABILITIES

- The city must take necessary steps to communicate effectively with people who have disabilities by using appropriate auxiliary aids and services. 28 CFR § 35.160.

- The city is required to give primary consideration to the type of auxiliary aid or service requested by the person with the disability. This choice must be honored, unless another equally effective means of communication is available, or the aid or service requested would fundamentally alter the nature of the program, service, or activity or would result in undue financial and administrative burdens. No matter what, the city must provide an aid or service that provides effective communication, if possible.

- The decision that a particular aid or service would result in an undue burden or a fundamental alteration must be made by a high-level official, accompanied by a written statement of the reasons for reaching that conclusion. 28 CFR § 35.150(a)(3).

- The telecommunications relay service (TRS), reached by calling 7-1-1, is a free nationwide network that uses communications assistants to serve as intermediaries between people who have hearing or speech disabilities who use a text telephone (TTY) or text messaging and people who use standard voice telephones.

- Video relay service (VRS) is a free, subscriber-based service for people who use sign language and have videophones, smart phones, or computers with video communication capabilities. The interpreter serves as an intermediary between the subscriber and the person who uses a voice telephone.

CURB RAMPS—NEW CONSTRUCTION OR ALTERATION

- When streets, roads, or highways are newly built or altered, they must have ramps or sloped areas wherever there are curbs or other barriers to entry from a sidewalk or path. Likewise, when new sidewalks or paths are built or are altered, they must contain curb ramps or sloped areas wherever they intersect with streets, roads, or highways. 28 CFR 35.151(i).

- If curb ramps constructed prior to March 15, 2012, already comply with the curb ramp requirements of the 1991 Standards, then they do not need to be modified in accordance with the 2010 Standards, unless they are altered after March 15, 2012.
CURB CUT PLAN

- Identify which streets in the city have sidewalks and whether the sidewalks at the intersections of those streets have been “cut” to allow wheelchair access to cross the streets to other sidewalks or streets.
- If all curbs have not been altered to allow wheelchair access, identify how many curbs (there are four curbs per intersection) need altering within the city.
- Absent special request or circumstances, curbs in the following locations should be given priority, in the order listed below:
  1) Hospitals;
  2) Schools;
  3) Any other public buildings;
  4) Business district; and
  5) Neighborhoods.

SERVICE ANIMALS

- A service animal is a dog that has been individually trained to do work or perform tasks for an individual with a disability. All breeds of dogs can be service animals, and documentation that the dog is a service animal is not required.
- In situations where it is not obvious that the dog is a service animal, staff may ask only two specific questions: (1) Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability, and (2) what work or task has the dog been trained to perform?
  Staff are not allowed to request any documentation for the dog, require that the dog demonstrate its task, or inquire about the nature of the person’s disability.
- Service animals must be allowed in areas of a facility where the public is allowed except where the dog’s presence would create a legitimate safety risk or where the dog’s presence would fundamentally alter the nature of a public entity’s services.
- The city may exclude service animals only if: (1) The dog is out of control and the handler cannot or does not regain control; or (2) the dog is not housebroken. If the service animal is excluded, then the individual must be allowed to enter the facility without the service animal.

WHEELCHAIRS AND OTHER POWER-DRIVEN MOBILITY DEVICES

- The city must allow people with disabilities to use mobility devices in all areas where members of the public are allowed to go to accommodate them, unless the mobility device used cannot be accommodated because of legitimate safety requirements.
- The city must consider the following factors in determining whether to permit certain power-driven mobility devices on their premises:
  1) the type, size, weight, dimensions, and speed of the device;
  2) the volume of pedestrian traffic;
  3) the facility’s design and operation characteristics, such as its square footage, whether it is indoors or outdoors, the placement of stationary equipment, devices, or furniture, and whether it has storage space for the device if requested by the individual;
  4) whether legitimate safety standards can be established to permit the safe operation of the device; and
  5) whether the use of the device creates a substantial risk of serious harm to the environment or natural or cultural resources or poses a conflict with federal land management laws and regulations.
- The city is encouraged to develop written policies specifying which power-driven mobility devices will be permitted and where and when they can be used.
ACCESSIBLE SWIMMING POOLS

- All state and local government programs, services, and activities, when viewed in their entirety, must be accessible to individuals with disabilities unless doing so results in a fundamental alteration in the nature of the program or in an undue financial and administrative burden. This requirement is known as “program accessibility.”

- Program accessibility applies to all pool-related programs, services, and activities (swimming programs). Program accessibility does not typically require that every pool be made accessible. However, if a public entity has only one existing pool, it must take steps to ensure that its swimming program at that pool is accessible.

- A public entity determines which method it will use for meeting its program accessibility obligations. When structural changes are made to existing pools, including installation of a fixed pool lift, the changes must comply with the 2010 Standards.

- The 2010 Standards establish two categories of pools: large pools with more than 300 linear feet of pool wall and smaller pools with less than 300 linear feet of wall.

- Large pools must have two accessible means of entry, with at least one being a pool lift or a sloped entry.

- Smaller pools are only required to have one accessible means of entry, provided that it is either a pool lift or a sloped entry.

- There are a limited number of exceptions to the requirements. One applies to multiple spas provided in a cluster. A second applies to wave pools, lazy rivers, sand-bottom pools, and other pools that have only one point of entry.

- If a public entity chooses to acquire equipment—for example, a portable lift—to provide program accessibility, the entity should select equipment that includes features required by the 2010 Standards, including independent operation by individuals with disabilities.

- Sharing accessible equipment between pools is not permitted, unless it would result in undue burdens to provide equipment at each one.

- Accessible pool features must be available whenever the facility is open to the public.

- For more information on the specific requirements and exceptions, see sections 242 and 1009 of the 2010 Standards.
APPENDIX F
SAMPLE SELF-EVALUATION AND TRANSITION PLAN

A self-evaluation is a procedure where the city evaluates its buildings, services, policies, and practices, and tries to make sure it is accessible to all individuals and in compliance with the requirements of the ADA. A notice was issued to the public on __________________________ (Try to provide at least seven days notice) inviting all interested persons, including those with disabilities and/or groups representing them to attend this walk-through of the city.

This self-evaluation and transition plan was created on _________________________, as a result of an evaluation of the city’s facilities by the following persons:

1) ____________________________________________
2) ____________________________________________
3) ____________________________________________
4) ____________________________________________
5) ____________________________________________
6) ____________________________________________

(If possible, include a disabled person from your community in the self-evaluation process.)

A self-evaluation is a city’s assessment of its current policies and practices. The self-evaluation identifies and corrects those policies and practices that are inconsistent with Title II’s requirements. As part of the self-evaluation, a city should:

g. Identify all the city’s programs, activities and services; and

h. Review all the policies and practices that govern the administration of the city’s programs, activities, and services. Normally, a city’s policies and practices are reflected in its laws, ordinances, regulations, administrative manuals or guides, policy directives, and memoranda. Other practices, however, may not be recorded and may be based on local custom.

The city of _________________________ has identified its policies and practices. They are as follows:

1) ____________________________________________
2) ____________________________________________
3) ____________________________________________
4) ____________________________________________

The city will now analyze whether these policies and practices adversely affect the full participation of individuals with disabilities in its programs, activities, and services. In this regard, the city is mindful that although its policies and practices may appear harmless, they may result in denying individuals with disabilities the full participation of its programs, activities, or services. Areas that need careful examination include the following:

1. A public entity must examine each program to determine whether any physical barriers to access exist. It should identify steps that need to be taken to enable these programs to be made accessible when viewed in their entirety. If structural changes are necessary, they should be included in the transition plan.

   Do any programs outlined in the previous section need to be examined here?

   Yes ________

   No ________

   If yes, list the program and the proposed modifications with dates of completion.

   1) ____________________________________________
   2) ____________________________________________
   3) ____________________________________________
   4) ____________________________________________
2. A public entity must review its policies and practices to determine whether any exclude or limit the participation of individuals with disabilities in its programs, activities, or services. Such policies or practices must be modified unless they are necessary for the operation or provision of the program, service, or activity. The self-evaluation should identify policy modifications to be implemented and include complete justifications for any exclusionary or limiting policies or practices that will not be modified.

Are any modifications to policies required?

Yes ______

No ______

If yes, list here.

1) ___________________________________________________________

2) ___________________________________________________________

3) ___________________________________________________________

4) ___________________________________________________________

3. A public entity should review its policies to ensure that it communicates with applicants, participants, and members of the public with disabilities in a manner that is as effective as its communications with others. If a public entity communicates with applicants and beneficiaries by telephone, it should ensure that Telephontype Telephones (TTYs) or equally effective telecommunication systems are used to communicate with individuals with impaired hearing or speech. Finally, if a public entity provides telephone emergency services, it should review its policies to ensure direct access to individuals who use TTYs and computer modems.

Does your city communicate with applicants by telephone?

Yes ______

No ______

If yes, have arrangements been made to ensure that TTYs or equally effective telecommunication systems are incorporated?

Yes ______

No ______

Not applicable

Does your city offer telephone emergency services?

Yes ______

No ______

If yes, state what policies have been put into effect to ensure access to disabled individuals.
APPENDIX F

4. A public entity should review its policies to ensure that they include provisions for readers for individuals with visual impairments; interpreters or other alternative communication measures, as appropriate, for individuals with hearing impairments; and amanuenses for individuals with manual impairments. A method for securing these services should be developed, including guidance on when and where these services will be provided. Where equipment is used as part of a public entity’s program, activity, or service, an assessment should be made to ensure that the equipment is usable by individuals with disabilities, particularly individuals with hearing, visual, and manual impairments. In addition, a public entity should have policies that ensure that its equipment is maintained and in working order.

Does your city have visually impaired persons who attend council meetings or other functions?

Yes ________

No ________

If yes, or if this occurs in the future, the city will read all handouts aloud at its meeting to ensure access.

If there are citizens who need assistance with applying for or paying for other city services, such as utilities provided by the city, the city will meet with that person and assist them by reading the applications and/or bills for service to them.

5. A review should be made of the procedures to evacuate individuals with disabilities during an emergency. This may require the installation of visual and audible warning signals and special procedures for assisting individuals with disabilities from a facility during an emergency.

The city does/does not (circle one) have visual and audible warning signals. If not, the city agrees to train one person in each of its buildings to assist individuals with disabilities from the facility during an emergency. The persons who are trained to do this for the City of ______________ are as follows:

1) __________________________ for __________________________ building;
2) __________________________ for __________________________ building;
3) __________________________ for __________________________ building;
4) __________________________ for __________________________ building;

A review should be conducted of a public entity’s written and audio-visual materials to ensure that individuals with disabilities are not portrayed in an offensive or demeaning manner.

6. If a public entity operates historic preservation programs, it should review its policies to ensure that it gives priority to methods that provide physical access to individuals with disabilities.

This was accomplished by way of an interview between ____________________ (city attorney or Municipal League representative) and _______________________ (ADA coordinator) on ______________________ (date).

10. A public entity should review its building and construction policies to ensure that the construction of each new facility or part of a facility, or the alteration of existing facilities after January 26, 1992, conforms to the standards designated under the Title II regulation.

11. A review should be made to ascertain whether measures have been taken to ensure that employees of the City of ______________ are familiar with the policies and practices for the full participation of individuals with disabilities. If appropriate, training should be provided to employees.

This has been done ____________________, see previous portions of this ADA compliance packet.

12. If a public entity limits or denies participation in its programs, activities, or services based on a drug usage, it should make sure that such policies do not discriminate against former drug users, as opposed to individuals who are currently engaged in illegal use of drugs. The City of ______________ does not restrict former drug users from participating in its programs, activities, or services.
